Dear Myla,

First of all, congratulations on your many successes since we last spoke or wrote. I'm delighted that you've found an active community to support and produce your fine work.

I was pleased to receive and re-read The Peacemakers, which, I believe, was the first play of yours I encountered. Because I read so many plays, it's hard for me to trace exactly where the new work occurred, but I agree that this draft is more finished and fully realized than the older one. I continue to think that this is a solid and provocative piece for the right audiences.

I'll replace the previous draft with this one in our library. It's still not a piece we can produce, but I like to keep your work on hand.

And I wish you all the best with your new work. It's always a pleasure to hear from you.

Sincerely,

Craig Watson
Literary Manager
